HOLDING ONTO THE BALL IS

The Toughest!

The enemy is downed—but the whole score isn't made! The costly care of our casualties, the rehabilitation of thousands of our boys—these are victories yet to win! These plus the fight to hold back rising prices.

It's our job to carry the ball for a final, rousing touchdown. Now's the time to push all the harder—to buy all the Victory Bonds you can—to keep all the Bonds you buy.

Let's not fumble the ball before the job is done!

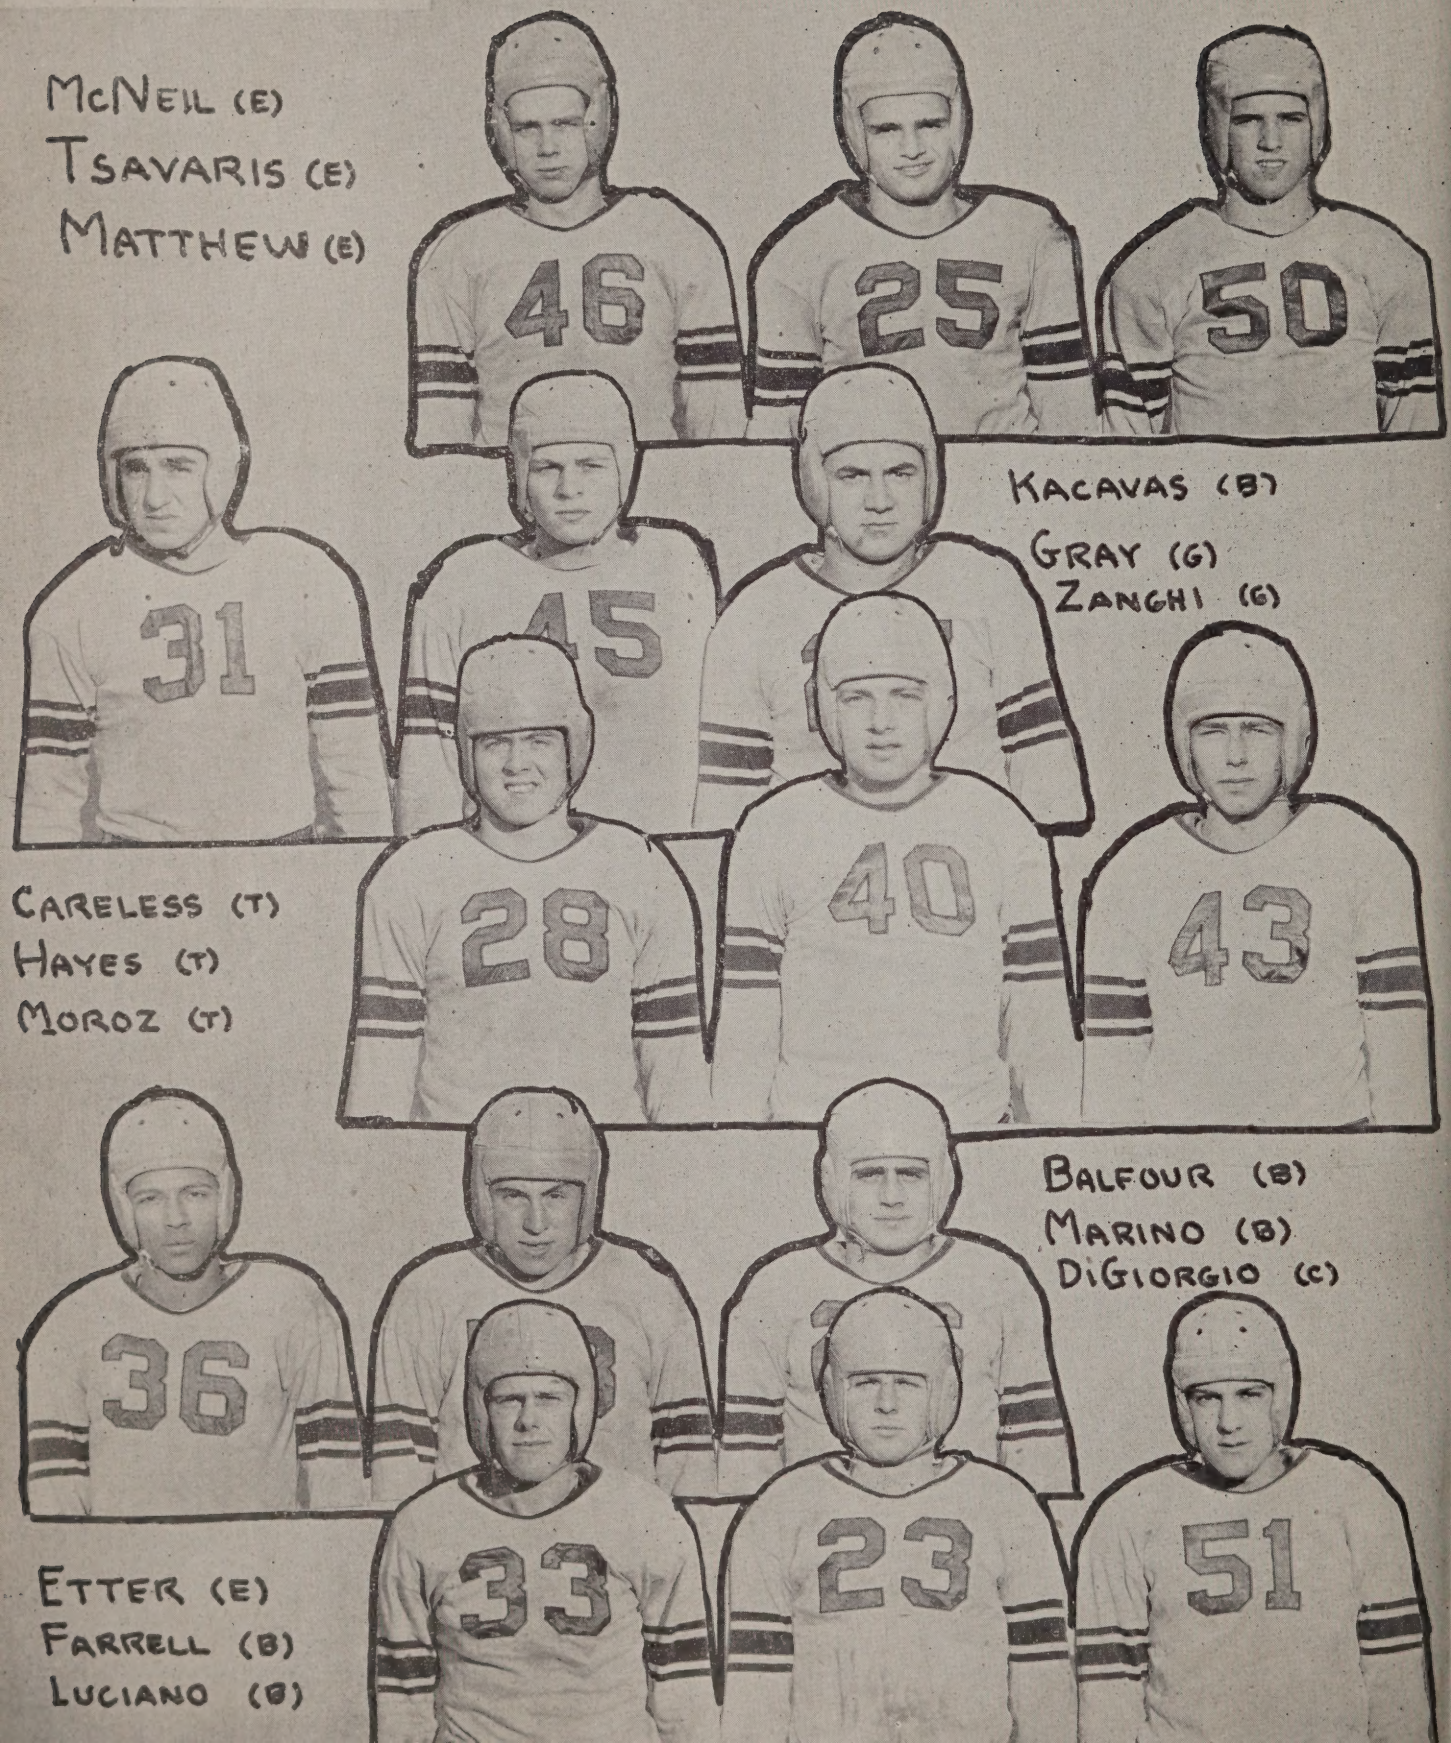
ENGLISH HIGH SCHOOL



ENGLISH HIGH OBSERVES 125th ANNIVERSARY

The big Blue and Blue eleven carries into the game today a rather stronger than usual feeling of responsibility. Today's game with Latin is a significant event on a calendar of significant events. This is the scholastic year in which English High School is observing the 125th anniversary of its establishment.

The history of English High is the history of the high school in the United States, for it was here in Boston that the first public high school in America was established, in the year 1821, and English High School was that school. The school has ever been a leader among progressive, high-aiming secondary schools seeking to build rugged citizenship for our nation.

A keynote of the 125th Anniversary year is the expressed desire of thousands of alumni to commemorate the service of English High School boys in the armed forces during the war just ended. The other day a new service flag was dedicated in the school building on Montgomery Street. A large blue star represents the 5500 E.H.S. men in all branches of the service. A large gold star shines forth in memory of 213 men who gave their lives for their country in her hour of need.

A school where HONOR and ACHIEVEMENT are constantly held up as the goal of every boy's endeavor . . . a grand old school of Boston, which together with its great athletic rival, Public Latin School, can look back over a long and honorable past . . . can look ahead to many a year of distinguished service to city, commonwealth and nation.

The chairman of the 125th Anniversary Alumni Committee is Chief Justice John P. Higgins, '11, Vice-chairmen are Paul W. Litchfield, '92, and Judge A. K. Cohen, '86. Serving as treasurer is Rowe A. Gladwin, '98; and as secretary Abraham Guterman, '16.

Committee chairmen are as follows: Ex-Officio, Henry J. Smith, '17, President The English High School Association; Ex-Officio, Walter F. Downey, Head Master; Finance, Judge Jacob J. Kaplan, '03; Celebration, Hon. Horace T. Cahill, '13; Publicity, Commissioner Thomas F. Sullivan, '95; Memorial, Henry A. Sasserno, '11.

Today's gridiron battle, then, in the classic Harvard Stadium is a most appropriate curtain-raiser for the Blue and Blue's 125th Anniversary observance, for regardless of the outcome, the game will be played according to the best traditions of these two great schools.

Robert Murphy

FIFTY YEARS AGO

1895 . . . EHS wins 4-0 in, as one writer put it, "slippery slimy octupus of mud". Capt. Callahan (E) played the game which made him the outstanding center of the League . . . Daly (L) made long runs on the "criss-cross" . . . The touchdown came "4000 spectators waited for the play . . . Sherlock signalled for a tackle formation . . . in a moment the 22 players were in a heap . . . Slowly the whole pile swayed forward to the Latin goal . . . as Referee Hale was about to whistle the ball down, Zeke Ellsworth burst out of the pile and downed the leather a foot across the line."

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

1920 . . . EHS wins 7-6 . . . also a duel in the mud . . . EHS wins for the first time since 1916 . . . Lyons (E. Capt.) punted and the fumbled punt was recovered on the 8-yard line by EHS . . . A five yard penalty for off-side moved the ball to the three . . . It took four plays to get it over from there . . . Roger Doherty (L. Capt.) dashed 55 yards for BLS score, but was not able to convert . . . Nordberg, Crosby, Lanigan and McDermott also starred for BLS . . . While Howarth, who scored the TD, Martin and McLean starred for EHS; and, of course, Capt. Lyons.

TEN YEARS AGO

1935 . . . English wins, 14-0. Scores in 1st and 4th periods. Goal line stands by Latin in the third period on the 15, 4, 5, and 9 yard lines. T. Powers (E) scored . . . Remember Mantos' (E) kicking of points after and attempts at field goals . . . Stars were, Histon, Finkelstein, and Gorman, all of Latin and later to star at Holy Cross, Brown, and Bates.

FIVE YEARS AGO

1940 . . . Underdog Latin trounces English 19-12 . . . Field covered with ice . . . Sullivan (L) "skates" 70 yards for TD . . . Brennan (E. Capt.) passes for two scores to Gillis and Webber . . . Score tied, seconds to go, "free" ball in end zone . . . Casey (L) recovers for TD . . . Redgate's adhesive tape . . . First time game broadcast . . . Fine play of Capts. Ward (L) and Brennan (E).

Song

On the field of many colors
Latin's banners rise.
Cheer on cheer like volleyed thunder
Echoes to the skies!
See, the Latin team is rushing!
Gaining more and more;
Then we'll fight! fight! fight!
Dear Latin, evermore!
For we win by might!

TRADITION DETERMINING FACTOR IN TODAY'S 58th ANNUAL CLASSIC

The face value of a high school football game is assessed by standards other than the season's record when the element of tradition enters into the play. For instance, in the 58th Annual Boston English, Public Latin football game today, a game steeped in traditions unchallenged, how can an expert justifiably say English has a finer record and therefore should win today's game, without rather considering not the record but the tradition involved, an element which has, as the past record shows, motivated the underdog to victory year after year.

How, again, can the experts slight the great ability of Charlie Fitzgerald, brilliant Latin coach, who though visited this year by gridiron gloom and misfortune, has been known to rally his lads to brilliant victory when hardly rating the chance of a tree in Brooklyn.

Recall, if you will, how evenly the football battle between the two schools has swayed in more than a half century. In the fifty-seven games played, English has won 24 and Latin 21, and a dozen other time-honored games have been tied. Odd too that ten of the twelve ties should be scoreless. The others were 6-all in 1928 and 3-all in 1914. Certainly there has been some inspired ball playing in those years.

Recall if you will how only a few weeks back in an ordinary scheduled game how one of today's aggressors went on record as playing an inspired ball game against the highly-touted Boston College high school when the two teams played a 19 to 19 ball game. English wasn't supposed to score that day. There was less reason those two weeks ago for English to play inspired ball than for either Latin or English to do the same today.

There is so much more to this game than the mere consideration of football records, the condition of the players, the backgrounds of the opposing coaches. Here is a game that is an event for the school, its alumni, its friends. It is a holiday within a holiday. For such an occasion, what more appropriate stadium can this game be played than in the Harvard stadium, the Citadel of New England Sportdom and tradition.

We are reminded that Bernard J. Kilroy, head coach at English, after ten weeks of successful crusading, finds himself faced with the threat of a traditional game. He realizes full well that he steps into an important role in an important series. It is Kilroy's first year, and a successful one, at the Blue and Blue school, but even he considers his unblemished record (in Boston high school circles) as secondary consequence in the possible prediction of victory. Plays and players can be scouted, but Kilroy knows the value of this scouting when Latin prepares to play its big Traditional Thanksgiving Day football game with English at the Harvard Stadium. All records are tossed to the winds.

English has done remarkably well, losing only to Groton school this season. The versatile English high captain, Bob Kelley, having returned to the academic graces of the English high school faculty, is now back at his old guard post and probably partly responsible for the increased calibre of ball that the Blue horde has played during and since the B. C. high game.

Consider how thoroughly the Latin eleven has weighed the abilities of the Luciano-Farrell passing combination. Consider with what determination Latin has girded itself to break up this combination and to stop the line-plunging tactics of Farrell, the hard-running English back.

Then too consider the strength in the Latin forward wall, bolstered around Greeley and Vokey, Latin co-captains, who are now in their third traditional game. This game means so much to these two lads. So very much depends on them.

It really matters not to Latin that English is undefeated, and it matters less to them that the English team has recovered its Captain Bob Murphy. The important thing is that this is the big day and the Latin goal is to win for Latin, for its alumni, for its friends, not to upset the dopesters or to blemish the English record, but just to win. That victory is such a big slice of the tradition.

We recall with accuracy the comment of Jerry Nason (Boston Sportswriter) in last season's program, "Somewhere down the long roads of Novembers leading back to 1886 the stature of this oldest of football rivalries changed. It became a tradition and while football games may be won and lost, traditions never die."

To which we humbly add, that all that can be lost today is a football game.
